

Employee Health and Hygiene Assessment

Name of food service establishment/ Facility #: _____

Date of assessment: _____ Operator Name: _____

Environmental Health Specialist (EHS): _____

The National Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) has identified five main risk factors that contribute to foodborne illnesses. These risk factors include: 1) Improper hot and cold holding, 2) Improper cooking temperatures, 3) Poor employee health and hygiene, 4) Food from unsafe sources, 5) Contaminated utensils and equipment. The purpose of this assessment tool is to identify any vulnerabilities (risk factor indicators) associated with poor employee health or hygiene, and to offer guidance on what can be done to reduce the risk of a foodborne illness associated with poor employee health and hygiene.

	Risk Factor Indicators	Met	Not Met	NA	Comments:
1	Written Health Policy/Poster readily accessible to staff
2	PIC Knowledge of employee health requirements
3	Staff knowledge of health policy
4	Staff training (personal health and hand hygiene)
5	Sick logs available for tracking employee illnesses
6	Daily wellness checks
7	Bodily Fluids clean-up kit and procedures for use
8	Daily cleaning of high touch surfaces in both employee use restrooms and kitchen (door latches, door knobs, sink faucet handles, etc.)
Health Department Recommendations:

To help reduce the overall risk of a foodborne illness or outbreak of illnesses from occurring within your food service establishment, the Barry-Eaton District Health Department has created a Healthy Food Service Establishment Tool Box, which may be accessed through the Barry-Eaton District Health Department website at <https://www.barryeatonhealth.org/food-establishment-employee-health-and-hygiene-toolkit>.

If you have questions regarding the toolbox, then please reach out to your local EHS inspector.
